"The Effectiveness of a Virtual Healthcare Neighborhood"

Researchers:

The principle investigator involved in this study is Dr. Christianne Fowler, DNP, RN, GNP-BC, who is the Responsible Project Investigator. The co-investigators are: Dr. Carolyn Rutledge, PhD, FNP-BC, Dr. Karen Kott, PhD, Dr. Kaprea Johnson, PhD, Margaret Lemaster MS, and Ajay Gupta, MS.

Description of Research:

Studies have been done to evaluate the stress associated with providing care to a family member or friend with Alzheimer's or related dementia that are not able to fully care for themselves. These studies have looked at overall caregiver burden and ways to decrease the stress on the caregivers. The time commitment for this study is six months. The first two months will involve enrolling participants, conducting the home visits and completing questionnaires. There will then be three months of usual care or the VHN. The final month will consist of the final home visit and completion of questionnaires. If you decide to participate in this study, you will be assigned to a group that either receives a home visit and usual care or a home visit which includes the on-line intervention of support, education and sleep quality monitoring. You will also be asked to fill out questionnaires about your current degree of social support, self-efficacy (self-understanding), and issues with insomnia. Also you will complete some demographic information for you and your care recipient such as age, level of education, income and ethnicity. If you say YES to participating in this study there will be one session taking place in your home at the beginning of the study and one near the end of the study to complete the questionnaires. The time involved for these home visits would be approximately 1 hour each. You will be assigned to one of two groups. There will be 30 other individuals in similar situations participating in this study in the Hampton Roads area of Virginia. The alternative to participation is simply to choose not to participate which you can do at any time before or during this study.

Exclusionary Criteria:

In order to participate in this study, you will need to provide care at home for an individual with Alzheimer's or other type of dementia. You should be able to read English and complete the questionnaires. You will need to have access to a computer with on-line capabilities. You should not participate in this study if you are not a caregiver for someone with any type of dementia that requires your help.

Risks and Benefits:

RISKS: If you decide to participate in this study you may face a risk of being asked personal questions about your feelings and current medical health that could make you feel uncomfortable. The researcher will try to reduce these risks by giving you time to think and respond to the questions without time pressure. Additionally, there will be time at the end of the questioning to make any comments or ask further questions of the researcher. If psychological stress develops as a result of responding to the researchers' questions, referral will be made to area support groups or to a healthcare provider. The Web page will be password coded and people will only use their first names when on the site. Confidentiality cannot be guaranteed if signs of physical or emotional abuse are identified during the study period.

BENEFITS: There are no direct benefits for participating in this study. However, some indirect benefits are that you may receive information about dementia and caregiving, support from other caregivers and the health care team members. You may also obtain information about dementia and the disease process and ways to improve the caregiver/care recipient relationship, dealing with problem behaviors, chronic illness, medications, improving sleep and end of life planning. Additionally, you will be given a sleep tracker device to keep after the study has been completed. Finally, others may benefit from the information you are willing to share about your caregiving experience.

Costs and Payments:

There are no costs for you to participate. To compensate you for your time completing the questionnaires used in this study you will receive $50 at the beginning and the end of the study, for a total of $100. Also, you will be given a sleep tracker device to keep after the study has been completed.

New Information:

If during the time of this study any new information is found that may affect your decision to participate, you will be given that information in a timely manner.

Confidentiality:

The researcher will take reasonable steps to keep private information, such as answers to the questionnaire and other information that may be shared during our conversation confidential. The personal identifiable information for the questionnaire will be removed and the material will be kept in a secure location with access available only by the researchers. After the information is evaluated, the material will be destroyed in a way that is unrecoverable. Data will be presented for the group as a whole and no one individual will be identified. While using the web page, the participants will use only their first names. If there is evidence of physical or cognitive neglect or abuse the researchers are required by law to inform local and state authorities of the need for intervention.
